

Tree cutting

Test your skills in the nature. Tree cutting allows the participants to show their physical, technical and their teamwork skills.

The day will start out with a theoretical introduction to the basic techniques: how to cut giant trees with great accuracy, or how to trim treetops high above the ground.

The security is of course very well taken care of.

After a thorough briefing, all of the participants are equipped with the necessary tools. In groups of four you will begin the more physical part of the event.

Before the trees are cut down the excitement grows. Each task is unique and the physical laws of the nature also have to be considered. To complete the tasks you have to combine physical strength, exact calculation and not to mention teamwork.

The participants will learn a lot about themselves and their colleagues during these stressed situations. The event is excellent in combination with e.g. teambuilding or if you want to give your customers an unforgettable experience.

Tree cutting may also be used in relation to a more knowledge emphasized perspective, by giving the participants an insight to the numerous resources in the forests.

The event can be combined with a lumberjack lunch in the free, where the experiences can be shared and the social network can be strengthened.
